ASPEN FORUM ON WOMEN AND GIRLS

As we reflect upon the one year anniversary of Time's Up, the Aspen Forum on Women and Girls would like to share with you a report on sexual harassment that emerged from our October 2018 roundtable Sustaining the Movement: Changing the Culture and explored promising practices, best practices and radical collaborations to stop sexual harassment in our society.

The year 2018 will truly be noted as one where women strongly and thoughtfully raised their voices to on behalf of dignity, equality, and fairness. The courageous stand by women to step up and say #metoo and Time's Up fueled a new national conversation on sexual harassment that resulted in the firing and resignation of powerful men as well as the passage of new laws and implementation of new standards in the workplace.

This new era ramped up a year of women's activism that changed Congress, state houses and Governorships and sparked overdue action and accountability in the media and private sectors across the nation. We are optimistic that this energy will yield more opportunities for progress for girls and women – and for a more just, transparent and thriving society.

We are just getting started at the Aspen Forum on Women and Girls. We look forward to connecting with you in 2019 on conversations that can continue to propel women and girls forward.

Warmly,
Anne Mosle and Peggy Clark
